THE FIGURING OF TAXES BIG ACC'TING JOB

In the roll of national industry the burden of taxation has become a heavy load, but nowhere more onerous than upon the oil industry and users of its products.

There are no less than 200 types of taxation imposed upon it. They are collected on every operation of the business, from setting up its equipment in the fields, to selling gasoline and lubricating oil at the filling station. Every product and by-product from crude oil, from the moment it comes out of the ground, and down through all the processes through which it becomes highly refined gasoline, fuel oil, and lubricants, is taxed.

Producers of crude oil and natural gas, for example, pay taxes on crude oil and natural gas as it is produced, there is a tax on oil withdrawn from storage, on sales of oil, and gas lands, and on top of all these types of taxes, there are severance taxes, production taxes, royalties, derelict taxes, anti-pollution taxes in a great many of the big fields, and well drilling permit fees.

Refiners, of course, have to pay taxes on their refined products. Pipe line companies pay taxes on their pipe lines, and taxes on all the crude they transport.

One of the biggest accounting jobs the industry has is that of taking care of the taxes it has to pay the governments.

Only slight changes have been made in the train times at this point. Nos. 1 and 2 (the fliers) keep to the same time, while No. 3 west-bound will arrive at 10k (4 p.m.) and No. 4 (eastbound) arrives at 11:30 a.m. Both of these leave ten minutes after arrival. The change went into effect on Monday last.

Suggest Closed Year For Wild Ducks

Possibility of having a closed season for duck shooting on the North American continent, owing to the steady decline of the birds, was entertained by several members during a warm discussion at the session of the annual meeting of the Alberta Fish and Game Association, which was held in Calgary last week.

Drought, disease and destruction by crows and magpies, were said to be the three major causes of depletion of ducks in Western Canada and the United States. However, several delegates took exception to the suggestion that there should be a closed season in Alberta when the majority of the birds are shot in United States.

C.N.R. International Makes Good Record

MONTREAL.—During the 37 years the International Limited has been operating between Montreal and Chicago, it has traversed more than 1,000 times the distance around the earth at the equator and has carried approximately 3,000,000 passengers. These were the figures given recently by H. C. Rochester, general manager of the Canadian National Railway. Since the five big 5700 class locomotives were put into service seven years ago, he added, they have travelled 3,000,000 miles, or 140 times around the world. Previously it took three locomotives to make the run between Montreal and Toronto, changes being made at Brockville and Belleville. The 5700 engines go the whole way.

"It used to be the practice," said Mr. Rochester, speaking of The International Limited's head-end, "to run an engine for about 50,000 miles and then give it a general overhauling. As a result of improved methods, the mileage between shopings was extended to 60,000 and then 70,000 miles, but now these 5700-class engines are running an average of about 250,000 miles between general overhauls."

9,956 Registered Idle in Alberta

Registered unemployed in this province on Saturday totaled 9,956, according to figures released last week by officials of the Alberta Unemployment Service. This is a decrease over the previous week when the total was 10,260.

Calgary continued as the unemployment centre of the province with 4,229 males and 516 females. Edmonton was next with 3,672 males and 396 females. Lethbridge has 408 males and 26 females; Medicine Hat 364 males and 65 females; Drumheller had 183 males and seven females.

During the past week employment was found for 234 males and 59 females.

Freedom of Press Right of Democracy

OTTAWA.—Freedom of the press is a fundamental right of democratic citizenship which must be uniform throughout Canada according to the Supreme Court of Canada in a factum on behalf of the Alberta newspapers for reference on the validity of Alberta's press bill.

The factum, presented by Hon. J. L. Ralston, counsel for the Alberta daily and weekly newspapers, argues that "act to ensure the publication of accurate news and information," passed at the recent session of the Alberta legislature is unconstitutional and invades the Dominion

New Industry in Refined Antimony

The first commercial production of refined antimony in Canada will take place within the next few months, according to a despatch from the Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa. The metal will be produced by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada in its antimony refinery at Trail, British Columbia, the erection of which is nearing completion.

The despatch advises that small quantities of antimony occur in the silver-cobalt-nickel-arsenic ore which are treated at Delora, Ontario, and are shipped abroad for further treatment, but that no payment is received for the metal. Other than this, except for small experimental shipments between 1925 and 1931, there has been no production of antimony in Canada since 1917 when there was an output of 341 tons of the ore, valued at $25,000. Antimony ore, and refined antimony were produced intermittently in small lots in the Maritime Provinces for several years prior to 1917.

The plant at Trail will treat fine dust residues from the Company's silver refinery, and is designed to handle 10 tons of these residues daily. Stocked dust will comprise sixty per cent of the charge until the piles have been depleted. Expectations are that in excess of 1400 tons of refined antimony a year will be produced, which amount is about double that of Canada's annual imports of the metal.

Runaway Bride Finds Romance

Runny and wholesome amusement is this picture's dominating entertainment. As all the comedy happens while an auto convicts in enroute to Los Angeles, the story is a sort of "Grand Hotel"-on-wheels idea. An odd collection of characters has been gathered together. Their attitudes in situations arising to confront them and the smart dialogue combine to make entertainment in this Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday picture, "Time Out for Romance" at the Elite.

Chaire Trevor is a helmsman fleeing from marriage and Michael Whelan is a driver bound for the coast and a job. William Demarest is the boss of the caravan and he and his wife, Leah Tyler, account for much of the fun. Douglas Powley, a sinister looking personality, eventually is revealed as a desperate man of trial and tribulation to Whelan, in whose car she first hides and later rides. Action and dialogue popping along at an attention holding pace, Miss Trevor accidentally puts the finger on Powley as a jewel thief, with the result that the whole audience is called to the country town calaboose once her father, Andrew Tombo, to identify her and decide to leave her cooped up in a cell with Whelan.

Fast Hockey Game Ends In 3-3 Tie

The Wainwright Forts skated to a three-all tie with the fast-appearing Irma sextet, when they played through seventy minutes of interesting hockey on Friday night.

The game started at a fast clip with both teams applying the pressure. Midway through the opening period Ken Torgy paved the way for the first goal when he skated through the Irma team and made a perfect pass to C. Torgy, who made no mistake on the shot, giving the Irma goalies no chance to save.

In the second period the play was fairly even, with Irma trying hard to bulge the hemp. The Forts established a comfortable lead when Don Stewart shot in a loose puck from a scramble around the Irma net. R. Ganderton got the shot. Irma broke into the scoring column after a few minutes play, when a loose puck was left uncovered near the Wainwright net, and Bob Maguire came in fast to score from close in. During the period, Don Stewart received a broken nose and had to have medical attention.

Irma pressed hard for the equalizer all through the third period and with the game sliding away from them, the forward line broke away from the Fort forwards, skated through the defence on a three-man rush, and on a neat goal play tied up the score. B. Maguire from F. Maguire, with but a minute to spare.

In the overtime period, Irma went into the lead for the first time during the game, when F. Maguire bulged the hemp, after working in close. The Forts fought right back in even terms again when C. Torgy banged in a pass from R. Ganderton. The teams were unable to break the tie.

Hickey, the Forts' goal-keeper, came in for a bouquet, on the good performance he showed between the pipes. Being his first start in several years, we look for some real class before the season is over.

The Maguire brothers turned in fine performances, too, for the Irma team.

Line-up—Forts—Hickey, K. Torgy, Dupre, D. Stewart, C. Torgy, R. Ganderton, Abbott, Theriot, Tomlin and R. Stewart. Irma—Irkin, Jones, Giltner, R. Maguire, F. Maguire, Butler, Smith, Irkin and Glasgow.

Referee—R. Paton.

First period—Forts: C. Torgy from K. Torgy. Penalties: P. Dupre. Second Period—Forts: Stewart from Ganderton; Irma: R. Maguire. Penalties: Giltner.

Third Period—Irma: F. Maguire; Forts: C. Torgy from Ganderton. Penalties: Smith, C. Torgy.

Of these, 1,712 loans amounting to $673,852 were negotiated since Dec. 10 when the last report was issued. All provinces shared in the loans made during that period.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Brunker were trippers to the city last week end, accompanied by Mr. Carl Brunker who has returned to his home in Turner Valley.

Need Not Renew License Till April 1

For the first time in Alberta motorist history, Alberta motorists started the new year with the comforting thought that they were not obliged to purchase new license plates until April 1.

Last January, motorists were obliged to buy "markers" to place on their cars, good until April 1, when they secured their automobile license plates good until April 1, 1938.

In previous years, automobile license plates were supposed to be secured on January 2 of each year. As a general rule, however, the

TWO VACANCIES ON PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD THIS YEAR

The regular monthly meeting of the Public School Board was held on January 4th with all members in attendance.

The minutes of the previous meeting as recorded by the secretary were read and adopted.

The Finance committee reported with an amounting to $1,085.76 and recommended payment of these and it was

Resolved that the report of the Finance committee be accepted and that cheques be issued for the several amounts.

Reports from Principal Meade of the high school and Principal Murray of the public school were read, and after acceptance were ordered to be filed.

It was resolved that the Board send a delegate to the annual convention of Alberta school trustees which is being held in Calgary on Feb. 2-3-4.

The report of the school attendance officer for the month of December was presented, and this was ordered filed, and a copy to be sent to the department.

On a regular motion, the secretary was instructed to advise the Town of Wainwright that there will be two vacancies to be filled on the school board at the forthcoming municipal elections.

The Board then adjourned.

A Wife Who Made Home Too Perfect

Stripped of all substantiating detail, "Craig's Wife," the week-end picture at the Elite, produces a revealing character drama. In the title role, Rosalind Russell, essaying a wholly unsympathetic character, gives a remarkable performance.

The picture is modern in atmosphere and production settings. Harriet Craig is a selfish, snooty, iron-willed wife whose only love, in her house, which she keeps in meticulous "snow window fashion." It is her security.

In one way or another, she alienates the affection and devotion of the aunt, her servants, neighbours, friends and niece, Ethel Landreth. Willful, lying, self-centred and suspicious, she puts her husband in to crime in order that her idea of respectability might be maintained. Finally she drives her husband from her side to be left a lonely woman in a cold, dead house.

Adapted from a Pulitzer prize winning play, the picture sticks closely to the original. No effort has been made to soften or humanize the central figure.

Plates Turned in Re-draw $20,000

Something like $20,000 will be the approximate total of refunds which have been sought by the turning in of motor vehicle license plates to the provincial treasury, according to officials of the department.

The period for obtaining this refund by laying up the vehicle and sending in the license plates closed on Monday last, when it was found that nearly 7,000 sets had been discounted; these came from practically all over the province.

It might well be noted that two or three cars for which the plates have been returned have been noticed on our Main street, and a reminder given that this is a very serious offence—running the cars without any plates.

The average refund of all cars has been around $3.00.

Some motorists even managed to keep their old license plates on their cars until the end of February.

The change in the auto license year from January 1 to April 1 was long advocated by the Alberta Motor Association, which contended that as a result of the change, more cars would be kept in operation during the winter months with greater gasoline sales and greater return to the provincial government by virtue of its gasoline tax.

plates were not secured until late in the month, or early in February.

Fine Library is Manitoba's Gift

WINNIPEG.—Attorney-General W. J. Major of Manitoba, recently announced the library of the late John A. Macdonald, which has been donated to the Manitoba government.

Mr. Major described the gift as one of the most important to any Canadian library. It was made by T. S. Stewart of Ottawa as a memorial to his father who died in 1933, and consists of 6,000 items of books, pamphlets, documents and typescript material dealing pre-eminently with historical and constitutional matters.

LOCAL HOCKEY BOYS LOSE TO VALLEY TEAM

In the best game of hockey played by the local boys yet this season, the "Forts" players of the Wainwright Valley team on Sunday last, and fully pleased a good-sized crowd with an interesting display, although finishing on the short end of a 6-3 count.

The first period was only five minutes old when Ken Torgy scored through his opponents to score unassisted. Shortly after this the same player was sent to the box for rough play, and the Valley team organized a power play which netted them two goals in two minutes, thus taking the lead. This was one of the highlights of the game, and was classy enough to rank with the best of well-executed fast hockey.

In the second period the "Forts" tied the score with a goal by C. Torgy from K. Torgy, although seconds afterwards saw them leading. Again when Abbott assisted C. Torgy to bulge the twins.

During this period Dupre had to leave the game for some time owing to being hit in the throat by the puck. The Valley boys then turned on the pressure again and Morley Hoskins (who will be remembered as a former Viking Town hockey star) scored two goals to put his team ahead 4-3.

In the final spasm the home team again found the twins a couple of times while holding the "Forts" scoreless, despite many close calls on their goalies, the game thus ending 6-3.

The Valley team is a nicely balanced aggregation of young players, all of whom are profiting by the years of experience of Habrich and Hoskins.

Miss Pat. Wainburn was a tripper to the city last week end for a couple of days.

The World of Wheat

By
H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searis Grain Company, Ltd.

"Is Registered and Certified seed any better than any other kind of seed?"

"Do seed growers really improve stocks?"

These are questions frequently asked, and here is some evidence which supplies an answer.

In 1935 "Crop Testing Plan" imported from eight of the best seed growers in Minnesota some 9,000 bushels of Minnesota "Registered" Thatcher. On test, these stocks were found to contain an average of 50 hearseed heads and other off-types for each count of 10,000 plants.

Two thousand bushels of this seed were allotted to thirty-six members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, with a request that they should do their best to improve the stock.

After two years of effort these particular seed growers have, this year, produced some 20,000 bushels with average impurities of only 5.2 per cent, and some stocks having less than 1 per cent. (These improved stocks are now being made available by the "Crop Testing Plan" to farmers who desire them.)

Here, it seems, is a definite and tangible illustration of the quality of the work done by our seed growers, and of the value of the methods of crop improvement as set out and required by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

Following factors have tended to raise price:—Broomhall's World wheat visible less than a year ago—Europe purchases United States' corn—Norway purchases American rye—Crop control bill passes U.S. House of Representatives—Very unfavourable political developments in the Orient—Severe frosts and ice covering reported in the Ukraine—Continued dryness holds back seeding in Algeria.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Disappointing foreign demand—Navigation closes on the Great Lakes—The Port of Montreal closes—Early Australian wheat offerings of excellent quality—Good rains favour germination in Morocco—Welcome rains in Natal and the Transvaal—Official Argentine wheat estimate 192 million.

CAN WE PREVENT COLDS?

A cold in the head is generally thought of as more of a nuisance than anything else. It certainly is a nuisance because it makes the sufferer a fairly uncomfortable individual.

Colds are something more than a nuisance, however; they are serious for certain reasons. In the first place, they are the greatest single cause of absence from work and school, and consequently, they cost more, in lost time and lost wages, than any other single illness. Secondly, what appears to be an ordinary cold may be the beginning of some serious illness, such as pneumonia.

Because you have often had colds which were merely a nuisance, you cannot count on escaping serious results in the future. It is a good idea to do everything possible to escape colds altogether. While there is yet much to be learned about colds, and extensive research is being carried out in an attempt to unravel the mysteries which surround this common complaint, there are some simple things which we may do to protect ourselves.

Keep in good health. Eat the right kinds of food and sleep with the bedroom window open (eight hours of sleep for adults—longer for children). Avoid people who have colds, because colds are spread from one person to another. Wash the hands thoroughly before eating, because the hands become soiled and very likely to have disease germs on them. Keep the body clean by regular bathing, using cold or cool water, followed by a rub with a rough towel. Keep the feet dry; if they get wet, change to dry shoes and stockings first giving the feet a good rub with a rough towel. Dress according to the thermometer not the season of the year, as too much clothing (especially indoors) causes perspiration and should therefore, be avoided.

The person who suffers from repeated colds should have his nose and throat examined by a doctor. The germs may lodge in diseased tonsils or adenoids and cause repeated colds; this can only be prevented by correcting the diseased condition of the nose and throat.

BETTER HEALTH

WISDOM TEETH

The third molars, or wisdom teeth, are particularly liable to cause serious illness and even death because of the frequency with which we have trouble in "cutting" them. The complications most often arise between the ages of twenty and thirty but may occur at any time after adolescence even into advanced old age. Men and women suffer equally but in both sexes the trouble is more often in the lower than in the upper jaw. The most common mishap is that only the front half of the wisdom tooth comes through and the gum forms a hood over the back half of the crown. Infection creeps under this hood and dangerous germs thrive in this little cavern. Attempts to remove a wisdom tooth while the gum around it is infected may result in a fatal spread of the infection.

Extraction of wisdom teeth is, however, an easy matter if taken in time. Abnormalities in the development of the third molars can be recognized by X-ray examination by the age of eleven years: that is to say several years before they are likely to cause any trouble. The time will probably come when careful parents will seek a dental X-ray of their children at this age to be sure that all is well and in order to forestall dangerous maldevelopment. The dental surgeon who recognizes abnormality at the age of eleven will continue to make X-ray observations of the tooth until its growth reaches a stage when preventive surgery can be undertaken with safety and a minimum of inconvenience to the patient.

This Week in Washington

Washington.—Between the time when Congress broke up in a row last Summer, practically shaking its fists at the White House, and the convening of the special session on November 15, two things happened which have knocked all the plans awry. Neither was anticipated.

First, the members who have been back home conferring with their constituents did not have their ears shocked down for being away to the President, as it had been predicted by Administration spokesmen would happen. And, second, a sudden slump occurred in business and industry, of such proportions as to send shudders of apprehension of its possible political results over every Senator and Representative who has to stand for re-election next Fall.

Runaway Congress
The direct result of these two things is that the Congress is in a more independent mood than it has been at any time in the past five years, and is showing signs of going ahead under its own steam and charting its own course. How far and in what direction it will get in this short special session is still unpredictable but it looks as if it will adjourn for the Christmas holidays with a good deal of the program which the President called it to consider still uncompleted.

First on the President's program was the Farm Control bill. But when Congress met there wasn't any farm control bill ready for it to consider, and the Senate took up its own No. 1 item, the Anti-Lynching bill, setting off a filibuster which wasted a goodly part of the five-week session. The debate did, however, give many Senators a chance to express themselves on the subject nearest to the hearts of their constituents, the new business depression and what to do about it.

Senate Marks Time
Since the Senate cannot initiate tax legislation under the Constitution, all it can do is to talk until the House sends it a bill to consider. But the talk in the Senate, supplemented by expressions by members of the House of Representatives on and off the record, disclosed a surprising unanimity of opinion in favor of taking immediate steps to end unshakable business and industry from the fetters of restrictive taxation, particularly the undistributed profits tax and the capital gains tax.

What made the situation more surprising was the agreement by the President that it was time to do something to encourage private capital to start the wheels of industry spinning at a faster rate and to invest in building new houses, factories and stores in order to stimulate production of building materials and put workers in the building and allied industries back to work. For once, it seemed the President, the Congress and the business world were in harmony.

No Tax Change Now
That the special session will repeal or amend the taxes on industry which are generally conceded to have hamstrung business enterprise seems doubtful. But if out of the debates and the public declarations come assurances which the business world accepts that it is going to get relief in the near future, a good start will have been made toward recovery from this latest depression. The reason for probable delay in tax revision until the regular session is the desire of the House Committee on Ways and Means not to do a piecemeal job but to present a complete scheme of tax revision in one comprehensive bill. To repeal any existing law without providing for equal or greater revenue from other sources would throw the Federal budget still further out of balance.

One of the essentials to the restoration of business confidence is reliable assurance of honest efforts to balance the budget. Congress seems even more bent on that than does the Executive, and does not want to do anything which will reopen the fears that the budget will never be balanced. Therefore the actual revision of the tax system must wait until the regular session, by which time the House Committee hopes to be able to present a practical and completely new tax bill.

Hill New Housing Plan
The wholehearted acceptance by the Administration of the demand for revision of the Federal Housing Administration Act to provide better coordination between Government and capital in promoting a nationwide housing drive meets with hearty approval on Capitol Hill. It will cost the Government nothing but small supervisory expenses, to authorize the formation of National mortgage banks with authority to rediscount mortgage loans under a Federal pooling system of guaranteeing lenders against loss.

With matters of such immediate importance uppermost in their minds, Senators and members of Congress are not so greatly concerned about the President's legislative program formulated last Summer. The four major items in that program are Crop Control, Ways-and-Means Legislation, Government Reorganization and Regional Power Planning. The last two are hardly likely to be reached at all at this session. The other two are facing serious and perhaps bitter opposition, and certainly will not be enacted in anything like the form in which they are presented.

Farm Lobby Divided
While Congress believes, generally speaking, that the farmers of the country want crop control if it is accompanied by benefit payments, there is no general agreement on how it should be formulated or administered, or how to pay for it without additional burdens on the Treasury.

The Farm Lobby in Congress is still powerful, but it is also sectioned and the sections are far apart in their ideas of what is needed by farmers. Any general crop control bill which will place one farm group will displease another. Members from the cotton and tobacco states want one thing, those from wheat, corn, livestock and potato sections want something else for their constituents. The only thing they all want is to be re-elected.

A SUPER-MANURE WITH PHOSPHATE
It is recorded in mythology that Hercules, by way of penance, was given the job of cleaning the stables at Augeas in one day. It was a truly herculean task, for the stables accommodated 3000 oxen and had not been cleaned out for 30 years. The resourceful Hercules accomplished the feat by turning the river through the stalls. That is one way of doing it; but the better modern method of keeping the stable clean, sweet and healthy is the daily use of a granular 20 per cent superphosphate to which has been added an aromatic disinfectant to increase its germicidal properties. After cleaning out the stable, in the morning and afternoon, the gritty, porous material is scattered in and behind the gutter and sometimes part way up the stall, at the rate of from one to two pounds per animal per day. This special phosphate is used also in box-stalls, pig-pens, fox-pens and poultry houses.

SHALLOW VERSUS DEEP TILLAGE IN THE PRAIRIE PROVINCES
Experiments on the best depth to plough or till land in order to secure the highest crop yields have been conducted by the Dominion Experimental Stations in the Prairie Provinces over a long period of years. These experiments, conducted on various soil types and under different climatic conditions, have indicated ploughing at six different depths ranging from three to eight inches, subsowing in addition to ploughing, and surface cultivation without ploughing.

At all Stations, the difference in crop yields between the various treatments were small and showed that there was no advantage to be gained from deep tilling. The shallow depths of ploughing in all cases gave as good or better results than ploughing at the deeper depths. The practice of subsowing did not prove profitable as in no instance did this practice result in any increase in crop yield. That deep ploughing is unnecessary was fur-

USEFUL KEROSENE
Now that the holidays are only a few weeks off, you will want to tidy up the house a bit, remove a few paint spots, put a few old pots and pans back into serviceable condition, and give the furniture a rub-down. Kerosene, that old family standby of years ago, is featured in several helpful home-made preparations that will do wonders in lightening home-hold tasks.

Should you have a perfectly serviceable pot or pan that happens to have a few rust spots, soak it in kerosene, wipe and polish it with a sand soap or bath linen, and you will soon have your pan as good as new.

Kerosene again comes in handy to remove paint spots from hardwood floors. Just rub the spots with a cloth soaked in kerosene, then follow with a cloth that has been moistened in warm water. Only sand spots will disappear as you rub.

A good furniture polish is made by mixing equal parts of kerosene, turpentine and vinegar.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT
He Was Shot In The Breast; But He Kept Right On With His Speech

One afternoon in January, 1919, a detachment of soldiers raised their rifles into the air and fired a salute. Roosevelt, the most colorful and spectacular president that ever wielded a big stick over this nation, had just returned from Cuba in almost everything about Teddy Roosevelt was extraordinary. For example, even though he was so nearighted that without his glasses, he couldn't recognize his best friend ten feet away, he became an expert rifle shot and brought down charging lions in Africa.

As a boy, he was pale and sickly and tortured with asthma; so he went west for his health, became a cowboy, slept out under the stars, and developed such a magnificent physique that he boxed with Mike Donovan. He explored the wilderness of South America, climbed such mountains as the Jungfrau and Matterhorn, and led a mighty charge up San Juan Hill in Cuba in the face of deadly rifle fire.

Roosevelt says in his autobiography that as a child he was nervous and timid and afraid of getting hurt. Yet he had his own war, his arm, his nose, his ribs, and his shoulder; and kept right on taking chances. When he was a boy in Dakota, he'd be thrown from his horse, crawl a bone, climb into the saddle again, and go on rounding up cattle.

within reach of the rifle pits, and any moment we may go down into the darkness."

He died peacefully in his sleep, on January 4, 1919. The last words he ever uttered were: "Please put out the lights."

MODERN WOMEN
EARLENE WHITE
President of The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club, Inc.

The fourth woman to serve the United States in a consular and diplomatic capacity is Miss Margaret M. Hanna, who has been appointed by the State Department as American Consul at Geneva, Switzerland. Miss Hanna, formerly of Ann Arbor, Michigan, has been with the State Department in Washington for forty-two years, starting in as a clerk. Among her duties have been service with the Venezuelan Claims Commission in Washington and the Pan-American Conference at Buenos Aires in 1910, at Santiago in 1921 and at Havana in 1928.

New York's prize horsehoes is a woman, Mrs. Martha Drew Smith, who learned her trade from her father in Dexter, Mich. Her husband is a blacksmith and together they operate a successful establishment in Greenwich Village. But they also go the length and breadth of Manhattan, shoeing and repairing horses, and supervising the work at riding academies. Mrs. Smith prefers to shoe big horses because it makes her bend over.

It must have been exciting to those native fishermen who for the first time took a woman on their Norwegian whaling boat from the coast of Labrador. But Miss Ester Andersen, who began going to the Grenfell Mission in Labrador ten years ago, had that honor. It is a sixty-mile run to the Labrador whaling grounds. People of Labrador now grow their own vegetables, which means better nourishment and better health, according to Miss Andersen, who is particularly interested in this development because she is by training a nurse.

THE GOLDEN RULE

In starting a new year, there is always a feeling of optimism and faith that this year is going to be better than the last. There is something suggestive, something inspiring in the thought that we are not going to make the mistakes that were made in the past. In fact, "hope" springs eternal from the human breast, and we can agree with the poet that "Every day is a fresh beginning. Every morn is a world made new. You, who are weary of sorrow and slinging."

Here is a beautiful hope for you.

At this season as at no other, men make resolutions and formulate the plans to compel the future to yield enrichments of life, happiness and possessions more than the past has done, and sometimes forget that true happiness comes from making other people happy. To be successful we must "live and let live." The "golden rule" has not any equal for a New Year's resolution, and has always paid highest dividends.

WE LEARN ABOUT WARS

"Peace on Earth" sounds like an empty phrase when mankind pauses to review a year of bloodshed in so many quarters of the world. The Sino-Japanese war in Asia, the gory civil war in Spain, massacres in Haiti, unrest in Poland, revolution in South America, "purges" in Russia—all this and more are scarlet patches on the crazy-quilt of history bounded by the figure 1937.

Even in our own land, blessed by Peace at least in name, an economic war is proving costly and productive of much strife. When it can be claimed without serious contradiction that labor strikes this year cost America $5,000,000 in lost wages and profits and products of industry, serious minded citizens pause to wonder. Five billion dollars in more than ten times the cost of the Revolutionary War. Even in these days of high prices it seems a steep figure for what has been called economic "revolution without the R."

Yet there are some advantages to even a series of events such as those which have characterized the year now closing. During the dismal days of 1931-2-3, many persons who ought to have known better were outbitten in their hopes that a war, somewhere else in the world, would offer a salvation to stranded business in the form of profitable orders for war supplies and artificial inflated prices and wages due to abnormal demand. The experience of 1937 disproves that hope. There is war elsewhere in the world—plenty of it—and it has failed to offer any visible relief to American business.

If the experience of a declining stock market, curtailment of industrial activity, rise in unemployment and rocketing of government expenses, all in the face of two wars being waged abroad has proved that this offers no solution to our ills, perhaps it has all not been quite in vain. War never made a profit for anybody, but it has taken 1900 years for humanity to find it out.

THE COST OF RELIEF

In the first nine months of 1937 the payments to needy persons from Federal, state and local tax funds in the States, was $152,416,000. Less than in the corresponding period of 1936, the Social Security Board reports. The total of such payments is still high enough, running to a bit more than a billion and a half dollars or over $177,000,000 a month. The lowest month in two years was September, 1937, when the relief outlay was 159 millions.

Those figures include wages paid to W.P.A. workers, subsistence grants under the Farm Security Administration, old-age assistance to the blind, aid to dependent children, old age pensions to nearly a million and a half aged men and women, and state and local relief payments to everyone unable to earn a living. The total for the year, at that rate, will run above two thousand million dollars.

Most of the criticism of the present relief system is based upon wide-spread suspicions that politicians are being benefitted as much as the poor are, that the relief policies contain the names of many who are not really in need, and the feeling that it is not the duty of society as a whole to provide luxuries as well as necessities for the poor.

All the facts about relief costs and who benefits by relief expenditures ought to be public property.

WOMEN ADVENTURES

By Clara Edwin Shook

Last Flight. By Amelia Barhart; (Toronto: George J. McLeod). Price $2.75.

... And Then The Storm. By Sister Monica; (Toronto: Longmans). Price, $3.00.

There are two very different books by American women. One is by a distinguished aviator; the other by an Ursuline nun. Both narrate adventure well worth reading.

Last Flight.

Amelia Barhart was a vivacious tomboy with an inherent joie de vivre and a strangely unfeminine love of machinery even though it involved grimy hands. Her unkempt hair invited William Allen White's satirical advice in the Empire Gazette: "You certainly need to comb your hair; now is the time to get the tangles out and give it a good straightening. So in the long watches over the gray and melancholy ocean, count your head, kid, count your head."

She had intended her book to be called "World Flight," but that was made impossible by the silence of the South Pacific. As she completed various laps in her journey, she dispatched the log of her ship, the "Electra," together with other interesting bits of description to her husband, George Haven Putnam. This continued up to her departure from Loe in New Guinea for Howland Island—never reached! Her husband has edited these reports with remarkable skill, and while certain sections reveal the somewhat piecemeal method of composition the book does reveal in the ensemble a very extraordinary and debonaire personality.

In the introductory chapter she tells how she became interested in flying. Canadians will learn that an important episode in her flying career took place in 1918 at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. With a friend she was watching some stunt flying when the aviator tried deliberately to frighten them by swooping down upon them. She says: "That little red airplane said something to me as it swooshed by. One suspects if she may not also have said something to that little red airplane."

The book contains some outstanding details of her major flights, including shrewd observations on countries and peoples visited en route. Thus she watches the innate dignity of African natives and asks: "What have we in the United States done to third grade people, so handsome and intelligent in the setting of their own country?" In another on motion by Coun. Welch, Mr. Harley Remvie was appointed Town Constable for the Town of Wainwright with instructions to present his declaration of office, taken before a Justice of the Peace, to the office of the Secretary-Treasurer for preservation in the records of the Town of Wainwright.

On motion by Coun. Welch, leave of absence from attendance at meetings of council was granted to Mayor J. G. Middlemiss for the full term of his absence from town on vacation.

On motion by Coun. Robinson, N. S. Kenny, Secretary-Treasurer of the Town of Wainwright, was appointed a member of the local board of health for the years 1938 to 1940 inclusive.

On motion by Coun. Welch, Coun. Link, Chairman of the Health Committee of council, was appointed a member of the local board of health for the years 1938 to 1940 inclusive.

On motion by Coun. Billing, N. S. Kenny, Secretary-Treasurer of the Town of Wainwright, was chosen by council to act as Returning Officer for the purpose of conducting the next general elections of the Town of Wainwright to be held in the month of February next and his choice was referred to the By-Laws Committee for inclusion in the necessary By-Law in this connection.

On motion by Coun. Cork, council granted leave for the introduction of a By-Law to provide for the appointment of a Returning Officer for the purpose of conducting the next Town Elections of the Town of Wainwright in the month of February, A.D. 1938, when By-Law Number 22 was introduced.

By various resolutions, By-Law Number 22 was given its first and second readings, was read a third time by unanimous consent, was assigned its title as in the original motion and was finally passed and the Mayor and Secretary-Treasurer were authorized and instructed to sign this By-Law and to attach thereto the Corporate Seal of the Town of Wainwright.

The Financial Statement for the month of December, A.D. 1937 was presented to council by the Secretary-Treasurer and, on motion by Coun. Cork, this statement was received and accepted and incorporated in the proceedings of the meeting.

On motion, Council was regularly adjourned.

compact sentence she gives us the significance of Singapore. In at least one passage she reveals an unusual sensitivity to beauty. She is flying over Northern Brazil and has climbed above the clouds and the rain into fair weather. The aviator can find the weather he wants, she says at one level or another. She can see the standing rain beneath her. "Horizontally distant, views are blotted out; vertically, clouds droop to shroud the shoulders of mountains or weep upon the jungled plain. But how many of the earthbound realize the relative freedom of 'up' might above the cloud-covering?"

Another fact is made perfectly clear. One of the dynamic influences in her career was her feminism. She wished to prove that women could do what men could do. And she did it even though the chronicle from Las concludes, referring to the long ocean flight before her, "I shall be glad when we have the hazards of its navigation behind us."

... And Then The Storm

Sister Monica went to Spain from the United States to examine the mosaic material for a life of Francisco de Toledo, the great Viceroy of Spain in the New World. Her researches carried her to Madrid, Seville (where the Archives of the Indies are stored), Avila famed for Santa Teresa, Toledo (where she witnessed the Morisco rite), Valladolid and Palos, whence Columbus sailed. Only those who have themselves known the charm of Spain may appreciate the delicate descriptions of the author who is always sympathetic. There are many Spanish phrases in the book and the reader unfamiliar with Spanish may often wish for a glossary, but Sister Monica has caught and imparted the beauty and mystery of Spain while, on the whole, she has not been unkind to the culture which fascinates her. In dealing with the revolution, her sympathies are obviously with the rebels, and many of her readers will find themselves unable to follow her in her expositions of the result. As Sister Monica says: "Infuse into this Cell-Berian stock, Greek blood, then some Phoenician, Carthaginian, and Roman; on this base lay a superstructure of Gothic Christian and of Saracen Mohammedanism, and how shall you name the result?" Poverty, squalor, disease, vice, fifth decay may abound as in all quasi-oriental districts, but romance will spring out of the sky's radiance, the air's languor, the gorgeousness of soil and vegetation, clothing it like a vine with beauty."

We North Americans need to read such interpretations of Spain as this, for we must not forget that it was Spain and Portugal who laid the foundations of European civilization in the New World. There was a great culture, but somewhere there was a fatal flaw. Was it the individualism of Spanish character? Was it religious intolerance and fanaticism? Was it the climate? Was the sheer greed of the landed gentry? Was it the gold and silver of Peruvian mines which corrupted the original Spanish virtues? Who knows?

We doubt if Sister Monica can give us the real answer to this question, but she does give us as much else for which we are thankful that we overlook what may be her own inevitable partialities. Her book confirms our long-held suspicion that Catholic education in the United States is destined to produce some outstanding writers in the immediate future. Sister Monica concludes: "It is not forgotten how Spain's unreadiness for new conditions lost to her her colonies; her present unreadiness may strike deep at the root of her national faith. We think it will, no matter who wins but whose is the responsibility?"

Fruit Salad for the Luncheon Or Supper Main Course

By BETTY BARCLAY

Salad bowls should not be confined to summer alone. They are even more valuable in winter when fresh fruits and vegetables are less plentiful. They help supply the daily ration of vitamins and minerals so necessary for optimum health. Especially valuable in these combinations are the citrus fruits, since they are available in fresh form the year around. Combined with other fruits in season, they make possible delicious and nourishing salads for every day in the year and all types of occasions. Try this menu for Sunday night supper or a bridge luncheon or even surprise the family with it for luncheon or supper any day.

Fresh Fruit Salad Bowl

The newest fashion in Fruit Salad bowls keeps fruit separate. Greens afford contrast and background. For the salad pictured, wash and dry carefully one or more varieties of fresh crisp greens such as romaine, lettuce, watercress, endive, chervil, escarole. Arrange attractively in a salad bowl. Place on the greens in definite groups:
5 slices of California Navel orange
4 slices of unpeeled, red-skinned apple, each "sandwiched" between 2 orange slices
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
Dash of pepper or paprika
Beat in slowly, using whirl-type beater:
1 pint salad oil
Beat until dressing is thick.
Banbury Tarts
Cut small squares from pie pastry. Put a spoonful of Lemon Mincemeat in center. Fold over to make triangle. Crimp edges. Bake in a quick oven.
Lemon Mincemeat
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 cup raisins, scalded, drained and chopped
3 cups finely chopped apple
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup orange marmalade
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon ginger
1/2 cup melted butter
Combine ingredients.

CAR LICENSES

GAIN IN ALBERTA

Over 80,000 passenger car licenses have been issued in Alberta since April 1, when the new license year plan came into effect, according to recent announcement by the Provincial Secretary's Department.

The total is some 1400 in excess of the aggregate for the previous calendar year, 1936. As the present year will not close until March 31, it is apparent that there will be a substantial increase over the previous year.

Purchases of new cars are certain to increase the license total, in the opinion of government officials. During the first three months of 1938, many new cars are expected to be bought.

Increase in car licenses already over last year is taken as full justification for the policy advocated by the Alberta Motor Association which claims that other advantages would result from changing the opening of the license year from January 1 to April 1.

With more cars on the highways, garages, service stations and general business will reap benefits during the first three months of 1938, in a period which in past years has been slack on account of the number of cars taken off the roads because of winter conditions.

OPTIMIST

CREED

To be so strong that nothing can disturb your peace of mind.
To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet.
To make all your friends feel that there is something in them.
To look at the sunny side of everything and make your optimism come true.
To think only of the best, to work only for the best and to expect only the best.
To be just as enthusiastic about the success of others as you are about your own.
To forget the mistakes of the past and press on to greater achievements of the future.
To wear a cheerful face at all times and to give every living creature you meet a smile.
To give so much time to improvement of yourself that you have no time to criticize others.
To be too large for worry, too noble for anger, too strong for fear, and too happy to permit the presence of trouble.

In this predicament all that is necessary is to moisten the mullage flap on another envelope, run the stamp over the dampened part quickly, then place on the letter to be mailed.

A crack on the inside of a range can be mended by using a filler made of equal parts of common table salt and wood ashes, moistened with water to the proper consistency. The filler will dry hard and will be lasting.

A novel way to water the hanging basket without spilling water on the floor, is to insert a small funnel in the dirt as near the center of the foliage as possible, and hidden by the foliage. Fill this funnel with water every day, and it will soak into the soil gradually.

A way to test the quality of coffee is to put a spoonful in a glass of cold water and add a few drops of lemon juice. If the coffee is pure it will remain on top of the water; if not, the water will become brown in color.

The Legion Notice Board

It is with much pleasure that we pass on the news that Comrade Gordon Graham was unanimously elected to carry on the good work as President of the Wainwright Branch for another year. Comrade Glass also continues as Vice President and the only change in the executive committee is the replacement of Comrade B. Morris by Comrade Geo. Gregson.

The annual general meeting was not particularly well attended, but was lacking in numbers was surely made up in enthusiasm and when ration time came around vocal effort was not absent and neither was it backward in expression and volume.

For the benefit of absent comrades we would like to call attention to a new Legion activity in the sponsoring of a renewal of Boy Scout activities in Wainwright. This, while a new departure here is not a new Legion activity in other places. Another point to be remembered is that the war has been over twenty years when Armistice time comes around once more and it follows that no member of the Legion is physically qualified to act as Scoutmaster, so our role will have to be an advisory one but a lot can be done in that capacity and helpful interest can keep alive the enthusiasm of youth.

It is not too soon to be thinking about our annual Viny Show. Easter Monday this year falls on April 18th and if any suggestions are available we shall be only too glad to give them full consideration at our next regular monthly meeting.

As we go to press Comrade Graham is undergoing some further army experience in the University Hospital in Edmonton and we know that all members of this branch wish him the best of luck and a speedy return to the Legion activities he has discharged so well.

MAYFIELD

Quite a number of our local farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather to haul their supply of wood for next winter.

Miss A. Penning has returned home after spending two weeks visiting with her parents at Gadsby.

Sheepskin Flats

Mr. W. L. Malcolm, our local teacher, planned to take up his duties at Battle Creek school after spending a pleasant vacation with his parents and wife at Innisfail.

Mr. E. Johnson spent Sunday at the home of Mr. J. Wilkinson.

The young people of our district report general gaiety at the rink on the river. If you'd like to really enjoy yourself, just come down some Sunday. It's situated in front of Mrs. Sutherland's and always kept in excellent condition.

The river forms a grand highway for the people of our district to Wainwright.

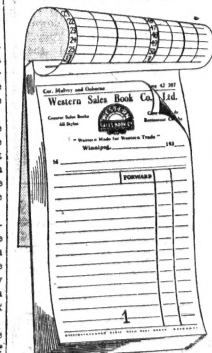

The young people are practising a play. It looks dangerous for Hollywood.

Mr. J. Wilkinson is going to Edmonton to receive special medical attention. He has been under the weather lately. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. Jones Myers left on horseback in forty below weather a short while ago, to visit his parents in Ponoka. A pretty long cold ride, Jones. Who

WHAT'S IN A FORD?

"The modern low-priced automobile sells for less per pound than the cheaper cuts of meat, yet it contains materials which before the advent of the motor car were almost times worth more than gold," R. H. McCarroll, Ford Motor Company engineer, stated in a recent Detroit address. "Development of new materials," he said, "has made possible a different and more economical method of fabrication, resulting in a lighter, less expensive part, which will, at the same time, give better service."

A Ford V-8 Tudor, the engineer says, contains 1,819 pounds of steel, 357 pounds of cast grey iron, 70 of rubber, 89 of cotton, 51 of glass, 34 of copper, 31.5 of lead, 14.5 of zinc, 14.5 of manganese, 10.6 of aluminum, 4 of tin, 3.5 of wool and mohair, 2.5 of chromium, 1.5 pounds of antimony, 0.8 pound of nickel, 0.7 pound of cadmium, and lesser quantities of tungsten, vanadium, molybdenum, titanium, columbium, cobalt and other materials.

The Penthouse Murder

SECOND INSTALLMENT

"I agree with Doane," said Henderson. "I'm funny that way, but the night of bloodshed, or even the thought of it, turns me sick at my stomach. You gentlemen in the police and the District Attorney's office and predicting criminal law, take it as part of the day's work. I'm going to have another drink before we get back to the business of the evening. Will you join me?"

Only Doane accepted, and the two drank another highball each while the others resumed their seats at the card table and Fraser began to deal.

"Sorry I started anything disagreeable, gentlemen," Michaelis apologized again. "Dan, you ought not to talk shop when you're out in company."

"I'll talk nothing but poker from now on," grunted the Inspector. "It is a cold, dark night and I crave excitement."

"The excitement begins right now, Dan," said Max Michaelis. "Table stakes, all jackpots, I believe? Then I'll take the lid off this one."

He showed a stack of blue chips into the middle of the table and the

he had had enough. "Don't let me break up the game, gentlemen," he said. "There still will be five of you. I'm not up to it tonight, that's all."

He settled for the several hundred dollars' worth of chips which he had lost; took a final drink and said good night.

Henderson escorted Doane to the elevator. "Archie's worried about his girl," said Flaherty, as soon as the two were out of earshot. "He isn't any too sure of her."

"My guess is that Henderson's a bit touched in the same quarter," suggested Fraser. "He was pretty quick to come to her defense when I made that bad break a while ago."

"I'm not on," said Max Michaelis. "Who's the dame?"

"I forgot you weren't here," Fraser apologized. "I made a fool break about Lydia Lane and both Henderson and Archie snapped me up."

He turned to the telephone again and dialed Spring 100 while the others, stunned, could only sit and stare at each other's speechless faces.

"Murdered?" cried Williams. "After what we were talking about, too!"

"Archie found them?" Fraser of the District Attorney's office spoke almost simultaneously with the other two.

"Yes, and he wants you to come with me, Max," replied Inspector Flaherty, addressing Michaelis again. "You might come, too, Fraser. No use guessing what's up, but it looks like a double murder, and, well, Archie's in a difficult position."

He turned to the telephone again and dialed Spring 100 while the others, stunned, could only sit and stare at each other's speechless faces.

"Inspector Flaherty speaking," they heard him say. "Let me speak to Larkin. Then give me anybody who's in the Bureau. . . Homicide Bureau? Is Detective Martineau there? . . . Tony, this is Inspector Flaherty. . . I'll be right up. Get hold of the Medical Examiner or his deputy right away. You go with him to 213 West 59th, Miss Lane's apartment."

He turned from the phone to the others. "What floor's it on, any of you know?"

"On the roof," replied Henderson, setting down the glass which he had just drained. "Penthouse apartment."

"It's one of these penthouse apartments," said Flaherty into the telephone. "It's a top apartment, man, and a Bertillon man with fingerprint equipment, along with you. You'll find a fellow named Archie Doane there—at least, I think you will. Don't ask him any questions, but just see what there is to see until I get there. I may be there ahead of you, but if I'm not, don't let Doane go without word from me. Better phone the precinct and have 'em send a uniform man to hold anybody who tries to leave the building before you get there. Tell them at the precinct the instructions are to let nobody in or out without orders from me. Got that? And, Tony. . ."

"You don't really suspect Archie did it, do you, Dan?" Max Michaelis interrupted. The Inspector waved his hand for silence. "I suspect everybody in a homicide case, and you know it," he said gruffly. "Then to the man at the other end of the wire he gave final instructions."

"Call the police garage and have them send a closed car for me, right off. I'm at Fifty-sixth just off Fifth Avenue, Highgate Film Building. I'll be waiting in the main lobby downstairs. Make it snappy, now, Tony."

He hung up and rejoined the others. "No use trying to get a taxi this time on Saturday night, in this storm," he said. "We'll have time to cash in on the game before the car gets here."

"It's stopped snowing," said Williams, who had pulled the curtains aside and was looking out over the white-shrouded roofs of the city.

"Yes, he's a good poker player, in spite of his calling it luck," said Fraser, after Henderson had left the room. "I told you he was, didn't I, Dan?"

"I'd like to sit in with him when his luck's out, before I committed myself," responded the detective. "He's a good winner but I've a hunch that he's the sort that would turn vicious if he lost when losing really meant anything to him. Rolling in money just now, and doesn't care whether he wins or loses at cards."

Max Michaelis nodded approvingly and seemed about to make some comment, when Henderson re-entered the room. They had another round of drinks and resumed their game. Somewhat less than half an hour later the telephone rang.

Henderson answered the call. "It's for you, Inspector," he called, his hand over the transmitter. "Are you here or not?"

"I'll answer," said Flaherty, rising. "I always leave word at Headquarters where to get me. They wouldn't call unless it was something important. Hello! Inspector Flaherty speaking."

"What? The hell you say? . . . Where are you now?"

There was a long silence in the room. Max Michaelis, watching the Inspector's face from where he sat, saw it grow tense as the Inspector listened. Then Flaherty's voice again.

"Both dead? All right; stay right there. Don't touch anything. I'll be right over. What's the address. Okay Archie. . . Don't lose your nerve. . . What's that? . . . Sure, I'll bring him with me."

Dan Flaherty turned from the telephone with what Max Michaelis often termed his "Old Sleuth" expression on his face.

"Get your coat on, Max," he said. "There's hell to pay. Lydia Lane and Stephen Fitzgerald have been killed in the girl's apartment. That was Archie Doane phoning. He found 'em!"

"Lydia dead?" gasped Henderson. He turned white and seemed about to fall from his chair. Fraser's hand on his shoulder steadied him.

"Murdered?" cried Williams. "After what we were talking about, too!"

"Archie found them?" Fraser of the District Attorney's office spoke almost simultaneously with the other two.

"Yes, and he wants you to come with me, Max," replied Inspector Flaherty, addressing Michaelis again. "You might come, too, Fraser. No use guessing what's up, but it looks like a double murder, and, well, Archie's in a difficult position."

NEW YEAR RECIPES
Here are some recipes that will help start the New Year off properly.

Egg Noodles and Pot Roast
1 lb. egg noodles
2 tablespoons butter or olive oil
2 cans tomato soup
2 cups water

1 teaspoon cinnamon
4 lb. beef round roast
1 large onion, cut fine
1 cup grated cheese
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper and salt

Brown roast well on all sides in olive oil or butter in a large sauce pan. Remove meat and brown onions, medium. Replace meat in sauce pan with browned onions, add tomato soup, water, sugar and spices to flavor. Cook slowly for 2 hours.

Cook egg noodles in boiling salted water till tender, place on platter ready to serve. Melt cheese in the gravy, add the egg noodles and toss lightly to mix gravy through the egg noodles. Garnish the roast with the egg noodles and serve. Makes 6 to 8 generous servings. Spaghetti, macaroni, meat, shells or any other form of macaroni products may be substituted for egg noodles.

Baked Limas
2 cups dried limas
1/2 cup diced salt pork

The storm's over. See, the stars are out. Everything looks so peaceful and pure—and two people have been murdered! Even though I never met Fitzgerald or Miss Lane, and only met Mr. Doane tonight, it—well, it gets me.

"It's got all of us," said Max Michaelis. "We all know Fitz—knew him, anyway—and we all love Archie. And Henderson, here . . . feeling better, old man? Want to have one of us stay with you?"

"Come along, if you like," said Dan Flaherty, with gruff kindness.

The inventor shuddered. "No, thank you. I couldn't stand it. Even if I didn't feel as I do about Miss Lane, I would go to pieces and be a nuisance. The rest of you go on. I don't mind staying with me, anybody. I'll be right. But I hope . . . I hope it isn't Archie. . . that did it, I mean. I thought from the way you spoke, Inspector. . ."

"Well, look at it as if you'd never heard of anybody concerned," Dan Flaherty interrupted. "A man's engaged to marry a girl. He's jealous of another man. He worries all evening because he doesn't know where the girl is, or the other man. He goes to the girl's apartment and finds the two together. Of course, he says they were both dead when he got there. But if you know just that much, and didn't know any more whom would you suspect?"

"Now I don't suspect Archie Doane any more than I suspect anybody else. But I'm a policeman. Privately I may be a little bit of a murder case. Get my point of view?"

"Of course, you have to look at it like that, Inspector," Henderson agreed. "But it doesn't sound like the sort of thing Archie Doane would do. Does it to you, Fraser?"

"No, it doesn't," the Assistant Attorney agreed. "He was awfully upset, though, tonight, about Miss Lane."

TELL 'EM and SELL 'EM

Agreed? Then you will surely examine every possibility and opening for increasing their sales during the coming year.

Some folks go fishing; others catch fish. Some merchants are merely "open for business"—and keep the bell ringing on the cash register by "Tellin' 'em and Sellin' 'em!"

They know that consistent (not intermittent) advertising in the Wainwright Star means consistent sales!

TODAY & TOMORROW

LABOR comes to power. Ever since I began to be interested in politics, something called the "Labor Vote" came into every pre-election discussion. Until lately it was merely a vague phrase. Labor was not organized politically. Members of labor unions voted as they pleased and not on orders from their leaders.

The only serious attempt in America to organize Labor as a political unit was the Knights of Labor, predecessor of the American Federation of Labor. In the 1880's, under the leadership of T. V. Powderly, it seemed to make progress for a while, but it was impossible to line up any considerable number of workers to agree to vote the same way.

The American Federation of Labor was founded on a non-political basis. No member was asked what his party allegiance was, nor could any of the unions or the Federation itself be voted as a unit. It put no "Labor" tickets in the field, but its members nominally supported candidates friendly to the wage-earners. Now the political aspect of Labor is changing. With the organization of the C.I.O. the American Labor Party is the political arm of new style labor unions. It is already a factor for politicians to reckon with.

Organized Labor tested its political power in several local and municipal elections this month. The American Labor Party, in New York City proved itself to hold the balance of power. It did not run its own candidate but endorsed the Republican candidate, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, and elected him. Polling nearly half a million votes, the Labor Party could have elected the Democratic candidate.

In Detroit, where the C.I.O. ran its own third ticket on a platform calling for complete acceptance of the C.I.O.'s right to control work and wages in industry, Labor was badly defeated, though it cast more than 140,000 votes.

Those results were to be expected. Voters as a whole are not ready to turn over their municipal governments to out-and-out labor leaders. Political Labor's tactics, to be successful, will have to follow the line adopted in New York, at least for a time. But by demonstrating ability to muster a block of votes large enough to decide an election, Labor has increased its power to make politicians listen to its demands.

UNIONS The sudden rise of Labor to political power is due to the success of John L. Lewis in organizing unskilled workers and working groups previously unorganized on the "One Big Union" plan. The Federation of Labor is composed of craft unions, enlisting the skilled workers in distinct trades. The C.I.O. plan takes into one union everybody who works at any trade or no trade at all in a given industry. The same idea was back of the "Wobblies" or Industrial Workers of the World, the labor movement which was making great headway before the World War.

Under the Federation plan labor unions are a sort of aristocracy of skilled workers. Under the C.I.O. plan the unskilled rank and file are brought into fraternity with the most highly paid. The two organizations are bitterly fighting each other. I have no idea which will win or whether both can survive.

I am quite certain, however, that unless the Federation itself goes into politics, the C.I.O. will crush itself in our political system by the power of its mass.

DANGER from irresponsibility The danger which many fear from the sudden political rise of Organized Labor is that there is no assurance that the rights and liberties of other than union members will be respected or protected, once Labor is in the saddle. I personally know many leaders in finance, business and industry, but I do not know one now living who can be honestly called an enemy of Labor.

All recognize the right of workers to organize, to strike for higher pay or better working conditions and to receive as high a proportion of the earnings of the concern they work for as the business will stand. But many recent activities of Organized Labor have savored so strongly of lawless disregard of the rights of everybody else and readiness to resort to violence to gain their ends, that the feeling is growing among thoughtful Americans that it is time for Labor organizations to assume responsibility which they now refuse to accept.

RULES should be equal In all other business affairs except the relations between organized workers and employers there is equal responsibility on both sides. If either party fails to carry out his part of a contract, there are well-established laws and practices to compel him to live up to his agreement or to pay a penalty. If an individual by his actions causes damage or loss to another's property or business he can be punished or made to pay for the damage done.

No such rules apply when one of the parties is a Labor organization. The employer whether an individual or a corporation, can be held to his agreement. There is no redress if a union violates its agreements.

If labor is to become a dominant force in politics it ought to be willing to stand on an even footing with everyone else, instead of claiming special privileges denied to others. Whenever Organized Labor accepts the same measure of responsibility which corporations and individuals are compelled to accept, most of the apprehension about Labor in politics will fade away and with it will vanish most of Labor's grievances.

Mixed Farming

IT IS EASY to talk about mixed farming, but not always easy to achieve it. Western farmers know that some land is better for growing wheat alone. Even in a drought year it is better to have wheat land, with no wheat than pasture land with no pasture. The wheat can wait until next year, but the stock cannot.

STILL, if one thinks of Canada as a single large farm area, it is plain to be seen there is an advantage in having many different kinds of crops coming along. It is not likely that they will all fail at the same time. There may be fruit in British Columbia or maple syrup in Quebec, even if New Brunswick potatoes fail. Similarly, butter may be churned on the Prairies, even if Ontario creameries have a bad year. In these diversified efforts lies a great part of our strength as a nation.

THOSE of us who work in factories instead of fields like to think that we are part of this diversified effort. The things we make—cotton goods, for instance—are needed. So we keep on producing crops of cotton goods, feeling that we are part of the Canadian plan of mixed production. Like the grain farmer, we contribute to the welfare of the whole country. That is the advantage of a diversified agriculture and a diversified manufacturing industry—when some of us suffer bad years, the others are on hand to keep things going.

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

The mixed bouquet started on Tuesday this week at the local curling rink and quite a number of rinks are in play. Full report will appear next week.

Winter car driving is much more dangerous than in the summer. That is the reason why everyone who drives in the winter should be fully insured. See Joe Welch for auto insurance.

In connection with the Retail Merchants' Association, Messrs. W. Washburn, J. Patterson and R. Bunker spent a couple of days in the city last week end. They interviewed Mr. King, deputy minister of trade and commerce on several matters and received a cordial hearing.

If your business isn't worth advertising, for goodness sake advertise it for sale and give some real live merchant a chance of assisting to keep your town to the forefront in business matters. A town's visiting card is its newspaper!

Now is the time of year to add to the comfort of your home. A 1938-model home is more important to the comfort, health and convenience of your family than the latest style in clothes, cars or radios. Call at the Atlas yard with your remodeling problems. Our estimates are free. Joe Welch, mgr.

The local junior hockey team had only a slight edge on the youngsters from Irma in the match on Monday night, taking the visitors into camp with a score of 1-0 after a nice, clean game.

ALICE STEVEN'S HOME SERVICE

True hospitality is a gift that can be developed. You know how we all love visiting certain friends because they make us feel so welcome and there are other social calls that are more or less of a duty. We have a sigh of relief when the call is finished and are glad that it will not have to be repeated for a time.

Have you ever tried to analyze what makes the difference? To which group have your friends put your home? It is not a matter of costly furniture and extravagant cookery. Fine linens and gleaming silver do not make the difference. Rather it is something within the hostess herself. Her welcome is sincere and genuine and the comfort of her guests is the first consideration.

Simple refreshments are always advised. An afternoon tea for a few friends need not be a costly affair. Play. This would really be in bad taste. Sandwiches are always popular and buttered muffins or biscuits are really enough to complete the menu. However, if your sweet-tooth demands something more, try a few cookies or small cakes. These can be served more easily than cake as the cake usually requires an extra plate and possibly a fork. Try this muffin recipe. I am sure your guests and the family will enjoy them.

SPICED APPLE MUFFINS

2 cups pastry flour
1/2 cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 cup finely chopped raw apples

Mix by the muffin method and add the chopped apples at the last. Bake in a moderate oven 20 to 25 minutes. This will make a dozen muffins.

I am particularly tea-minded this week, as we have just completed the serving of a big afternoon tea to more than eight hundred guests. One of the biggest problems was enough boiling water, but we managed with the aid of one range and several hot plates and many boilers and kettles. We made tea in tea-pots—had over 40 of them—and used the small individual tea-bags. We used 3 or 4 in a tea-pot and they were handy to empty so that everyone had fresh tea. I would recommend this method to anyone serving afternoon tea to a large group.

Here are some standard amounts for large quantity serving. They helped me out a good deal and you might find them useful.

- 1 boiler of coffee serves from 125 to 150.
- 1 pound of tea serves 100.
- 1 pound of coffee serves 100.
- 1 pound of coffee serves 50.
- 1 pound of lump sugar serves 100 people.
- 1 1/2 quarts cream serves 100 people for tea.
- 2 1/2 quarts of cream serves 100 people for coffee.
- 1 standard loaf cuts 20 slices.
- 1 sandwich loaf cuts 60 slices.
- 1 sandwich loaf requires 1/2 pound of butter and 1/4 to 1 pound filling.

Owing to an unfortunate misadventure, Bill Smith, of Port Saskatchewan, who had been in the town since Thursday when he threw a lighted match into a pail which had contained gasoline. The gasoline and fumes exploded with the result that after being rushed to Edmonton for medical attention it has been found that he will lose the sight of his left eye. Mr. Alex Smith, one of his brothers, immediately drove up from town to visit his brother upon receipt of the news.

When the real cold weather comes, no coal will keep you warm like Wainwright. Sold at the Atlas yard. Joe Welch.

Mr. E. (Bud) Cotton left on Sunday last in charge of a couple of young moose which have been shipped from the National Park to their new home in Pittsburgh, Penn. city zoo. These were the first moose to ever be roped and led into captivity; and Dave Davidson had some fun, too, preparing their breakfast "cereal" in the shape of chopped twigs, shoots, leaves, etc!

Installation of officers in Wainwright lodge I.O.O.F. will take place on Monday next, the D.D.G.M., Bro. L. Mitchell, having made this announcement. All members of the Order are invited to attend.

Having broken her knee-cap in a fall while at home, Mrs. Jacob Gehring was taken to the hospital last week and is now doing nicely.

COMING EVENTS

The members of St. Andrew's (Pres.) L.A. are preparing for their annual "Burns' Concert" which is to be held in the I.O.O.F. hall on Monday, Jan. 24th at eight o'clock. Adult admission, 50c, and everyone is invited.

The Editor.

Dear Sir—With a new year spreading over the wide domain of Canada, bringing within its spaciousness a deep mystery of developments and events; I think for a moment on what I might hope for or how I would choose events to shape themselves. Within our union we seek the way to a full life, and there exists a spirit of harmony, sponsored by the frankness of young people, who, as yet unspooled in a sophisticated world, can still understand one another.

Being a member of such a group what do I wish to see become a reality in the new year? I would wish that a spirit of love would sweep into all men's hearts, so that a state of harmony could be set up in the world. The dread of the horrors of warfare, strife and hatred, should be abolished forever.

I would see written plainly in the ensuing pages, a method of education providing a free access to knowledge for every person who desired to avail himself of such an opportunity and through such free education, I would hope to some day dispel the fears and evils that are the fruits of ignorance. I would see opportunity provided so that each young man and young woman, upon reaching maturity, should be assimilated into the business and social life of our country. This is a requirement of our social order and I would see this requirement satisfied.

When one dwells among interesting young people, and sees the slow decay of idleness eating away the ambition and the high objectives; seeing a generation, that ought to be the most favored of any in modern times, being deprived of their just opportunities for the enjoyment of a full life, he must feel puzzled by the lack of interest in such a situation by those who rule our land; and also a little disgusted with the way in which our social order runs.

When I ask for harmony and peace; for education and the light of knowledge; for a opportunity for service; it is more than a wish. It is almost a prayer, offered by a generation of young people. Yours,

K. SIMPSON TORY.

President United Church Young People's Union, Wainwright.
